

FISCHER

With wine-growing in his blood, and after graduating of the winegrowing school in Klosterneuburg and Krems, Christian Fischer entered his parent's firm in 1982 and has been responsible for wine production since then. Not much later he excited the specialists with his first barrel red wine (Pinot Noir 1985).

„In those days the interest in red wine in Austria had just begun - and that stimulated me.” Christian Fischer

The rest is history. Numerous awards at home and abroad prove that Christian Fischer was on the right road and has remained so to this day.

The philosophy of the vintner and equestrian fan is clear:

in the foreground is the production of red wines to a top international standard, whereby the efforts are to use to an optimum the available potential of the vineyards and location, with the inclusion of internationally acknowledged red wine varieties - complementary to the varieties common in the area - to create full-content, multifaceted wines with a harmonic tannin structure and maturing potential.

The “making of wine” goes back as a long family tradition with the Fischers. The Fischer Wine Estate, one of the so-called original houses in Sooß, has been a family property since 1662. Already at the turn of the century the Fischers owned a tavern for the sale of new wine, which was closed in the 1930s and reopened in 1974.

Everyone helps in the enterprise today. Veronika Fischer, the wife and mother of four daughters, watches over the buffet and the marketing of the wines. The children help at the buffet and by serving when there is need for an extra pair of hands.

Engelbert Fischer, the senior head, together with his activities as mayor of Sooß, loves above all his work in the vineyard. His wife Erika is known far beyond the community borders for her lung and heart stew. Which only leaves the wine - and Christian Fischer makes that.
